EQUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR EDUCATION AIM OF BOSTON MEETING

Educators from different parts of Massachusetts and New England are in Boston today, to attend the first public conference at the Normal Art school this afternoon for the purpose of securing equality of educational opportunity. The conference is called by the state board of education on the recommendation of the last Legislature, which instructed the board to make such an investigation and submit to the next Legislature a working plan for carrying out the idea in Massachusetts. In this connection the state board is empowered to invite a cooperative committee from other New England states and is directed to hold public hearings.

No. 29—Plain Signatures

A COMMON mistake among many correspondents is the habitual signing of their names in unreadable styles. It is an inexcusable and unnecessary habit. The idea probably grew out of the old-time thought that a complex signature of a bank official or financial man made it more difficult to forge the name. But it has been proved that a name can be signed so that all can easily read it and still present difficulties to would-be imitators.

than a signature to all letters so plainly written that the receiver can easily read every letter and never spend an instant in deciphering the name. fellow," and it often leads to loss of time, mistakes man should write his name in plain letters, dot used. Hotel clerks will indorse every word of this statement.

letters written by large concerns which send out hundreds or thousands of letters daily, and where personal attention to various propositions expedites their fulfilment. When the man addressed receives a letter from the "American Blue Grass Company" plainly signed by F. N. Merriman, in replying he can be definite and write "yours of the third inst. by F. N. Merriman is received," or place under the date line "For attention of F. N. Merriman." Then the sender of the letter has done all possible to insure the delivery of his letter to the desk of the one who knows all about the proposition.

letter to a stranger so it looks like "T. U. Nurumau," it looks odd to the recipient, and he has to spend time studying it out. Finally he guesses at the name and puts his guess into his acknowledgment. The letter arrives at the mailing department of the large concern; no one knows who "Nurumau" is and the letter goes the rounds, longs. Because of one man's freakish signature, 10 or 20 workers have been compelled to read or "look up the correspondence," whereas it was curacy—good business judgment applied to details.

Sixteen players in all are making the tour, which is one more than the usual a weak batsmen on the side, though Hitch and Strudwick are not usually considered among the best. They have both, however, done some good perform ances during the recent summer. Of course, had C. B. Fry, R. H. Spooner and G. L. Jessop been able to accept the team would have had some of Eng land's best batting talent, and there can be no doubt that the Australians were looking forward to seeing one or two of these at least. For all that, the batting is good and curiously enough includes three left-hand batsmen, Kinneir Mead and Woolley, who will counteract the famous Australian trio, Clem Hill, W. Bardsley and V. Ransford. In bowling the English side possesses a great variety and, as far as English wickets are concerned, good quality, too. Hitch is the fast bowler, in the medium line there are F. R. Foster, Douglas, Barnes, Iremouger, Woolley and Rhodes, and also Vine and Hearne as leg-break bowlers, while Mead and Hobbs are quite useful when the attack gets "collared." Strudwick is a great wicket-keeper, and Smith is a good understudy to him. As a captain, P. F. Warrer has had a wide experience and is not only a fine cricketer. but a good judge of the game.

This is the eighteenth English team to tour in Australia. Results between England and Australia to date are:

Chandler & Co. received information regarding one of the largest firms that manufacture suits in New York, to this effect: Just at the time when the buyers from the large

Western houses were arriving in New York and other buyers were returning from Europe preparing to place their usual orders, they had the misfortune to be burned out. At that time they could not tell when they could resume business so had to pass over many orders which were placed elsewhere. Their factory is now rehabilitated—they needed business and made inducements for large orders with us to secure immediate business. Orders could be executed at once, duplications of all their finest materials had arrived.

also the latest models, and interesting prices were made.

models and the materials, and found them up to the very hour in style. An order

BIG PIPE ORGAN BUILT IN STUDIO NEARLY FINISHED

the four manual organ in the studio of Sanborn, Huntington Champers, is nearing completion and the work is being advanced as rapidly as possible so that the instrument may soon be about three years ago, Mr. Sanborn designed the action to be tubular-pneumatic, but a few months ago when he decided to make a few additions to the ction he found it necessary, because of limited space, to change the entire action to electro-pneumatic, in which about nine miles of wire will be used.

The organ, consisting of 32 stops, about 1800 pipes and a set of chimes is designed for a space 914 feet high, 1314 wide and 18 feet deep exclusive.of reservoirs which are supplied by a restructed electric blower. Each of the four organs is in a separ- machine, which rapidly turns out a triple children. Among their products are fire

A special feature is the echo organ in the construction of which much skill has been shown considering its close proxto the hearer. Above the keyboard are 161 pistons for the setting of ombinations, which are controlled by 16 thumb-pistons between the manuals. These combinations can be set before or during a composition and on the name-board directly before the eye of the player is an electric lighted indicator which shows at all times the different combinations which may be on. Probably the most novel feature of this achievement is that the greater part of the organ was constructed in the studio without the so called necessary conveniences of an organ factory, and also that the greater part of the work was done by Mr. Sanborn, a few of his students, and one organ mechanic.

The Attraction in Playing the Pianola Piano

Do you know why the Pianola Piano exerts so powerful an attraction for those who play it? Why it has so brilliantly succeeded where other piano-playing devices have failed?

It is because the Pianola Piano makes strong demands on the personality of its performer. Because the performer must himself actually produce the music, because no mechanical agency does his work for him or interposes itself between him and his instrument. And also because playing the Pianola Piano is so simple that even those least versed in music find no difficulty whatever in quickly becoming expert performers.

AMERICA IS URGED TO USE ITS INFLUENCE FOR PEACE IN EUROPE

America needs to awaken to a realization of the influence it can exert in the interest of peace in Europe through its position on international policies, acreturned with Mrs. Mead after their summer peace campaign in European coun-

Their last two weeks in Europe were passed in Berne, in attendance at the meeting of the general assembly of the international peace bureau, and in Paris, in conference with Baron d'Estournelles. William T. Stead, Norman Angell and others, chiefly concerning Italy's attack upon Tripoli, which Mr. Mead proounced "the most ruthless and appalling piece of piracy and lawlessness in re-cent international experience." "Every civilized nation," he said, "should protest against it with the utmost force, and compel its miscarriage."

He greatly regretted that the American people had not spoken with more energy and effect, "Our people," he said, eneed to realize more deeply how much their position on international policies counts for in Europe, and what their duty is to exert their influence at critical junctures with promptness and

Mr. and Mrs. Mead sailed from Cherbourg Oct. 4 by the Oceanic, landing in New York on Wednesday He and Mrs. Mead addressed many meetings in London and other cities in England and Scotland, and spent the month of August in Germany, working everywhere in the interest of closer and more efficient cooperation between the peace workers of America and Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Mead left Friday for a week's stay at their New Hampshire farm. "A little later," said Mr. Mead, "I shall be glad to speak about our impressions and some things of significance, but now I want to get away to the hills for a breath of this beautifut October."

In Germany they had meetings in Berlin, Leipsic, Jena and Stuttgart. At the close of the Leipsic meeting a committee was formed to organize a Leipsic peace society, which Mr. Mead spoke of as giving him peculiar pleasure, as Leipsic was his old university town.

rofessor Ostwald, who was present at this meeting and who was the German exchange professor at Harvard a few years ago, is ready to serve as president of this new society, and Professor Lamprecht the famous historian, now rector of the university, is very warm and active in support of the International Club recently tormed by the Leipsic students.

Mr. and Mrs. Mead went as far as Vienna and Budapest, in both of which places important meetings were arranged. Of the reception in Budapest Mr. Mead spoke with special appreciation and gratitude, as one of their most impressive experiences. They were officially made the guests there of the Hungarian group of the Interparliamentary Union, and received at the Parliament house by the president of the chamber of deputies. A anquet was given in their honor at the large afternoon meeting, at which Count Apponyi presided, many members of Parliament were present, and such influential men as Franz Kossuth, Count Michael Esterhazy, and M. Scell, the former prime minister of Hungary.

"It was all a surprise and a delight." said Mr. Mead. "We had not expected such deep interest. Budapest altogether," he added, "is a surprise and a delight. It is a wonderful city, with a million ople, for the most part as modern as people, for the most with an amazingly vigorous and progressive-life."

NEW YORK, October 14, 1911.

Dear Madam :--

Not long ago an Ohio store advertised some unknown corset at $1.00, falsely stating that it was "like the Nemo," but could be sold at a lower price "because the makers spend no money in advertising."

Such a stupid and moth-eaten argument would not fool you, madam; but women who dont think closely might "fall for it."

Now the FACT is that you are paying MUCH LESS for your Nemos than many of you would have to pay if we had not spent a fortune in publicly and persistently advertising the standard retail prices of Nemo Corsets. WHY?

BECAUSE—nearly every woman now knows the correct price for each Nemo model. Were it otherwise, dealers could easily charge more -for, by comparison, Nemos are really worth much more than our fixed retail prices.

Our retail prices assure the dealer a fair and adequate margin of profit; but plenty of dealers will try to sell you something "just as good as the Nemo," for no reason except that the substitute yields them a larger profit.

By giving you, year in and year out, greater corset-values than are obtainable in any other make, we have built up a business so vast that, even though we are the largest advertisers in the corset world, our percentage of cost of advertising is probably smaller than that of any other

As President Taft said of Canadian annexation, the Ohio merchant's story is "BOSH."

By the way, have you seen Nemo No. 406? It's a Self-Reducing model especially suited to a woman who is troubled with thick upper limbs. You'll see by the picture how those broad bands of elastic take out that ridge below the corsetskirt, so that your thinnest gown will fit smoothly. No. 408 is the same, only the bust is a bit higher.

It's a good thing to know all about Nemo

Corsets. Ask your dealer—this week.

With RICHMOND Vacuum Cleaning, the dust is not stirred up but is collected without a chance to escapeall of it—and removed from the room and easily destroyed.

Wherever installed-in a ten-room residence or a building which measures its floor space by the acre—
RICHMOND Vacuum Cleaning will pay for itself in from eighteen to thirty

It pays for itself, first, because it does away with the annual tear-up called house-cleaning (and house-cleaning costs more than you think unless you have figured it out).

It pays for itself, second, because it doubles and trebles the life of car-pets, hangings, furniture, wall-paper, decorations; and keeps everything al-ways bright and new.

Vacuum cleaning does away with the worst drudgery a woman knows; without any of the annoyances of sweeping and dusting it ensures an absolute cleanliness such as sweeping and dusting could never make possi-

But even convenience and ease and perfect cleanliness are of secondary importance when compared with the actual, traceable, provable saving of money that vacuum cleaning brings.

RICHMOND Vacuum Cleaning embraces every provedly successful type of apparatus. It includes Hand Power Cleaners for $29.00; Portable Electric Cleaners for $73.00; and Stationary Plants which can be installed complete for $275.00—all on our "Easy Payment Plan;" or a liberal discount will be allowed for cash.

DESIGN SUITABLE FOR YOKE OF A BABY'S DRESS TOCLEANCURTAINS

The Leaves and the Flowers Are to Be Worked Solid

This is recommended for curtains that ordinary tubbing might destroy: After shaking well and wiping with a soft cloth to remove as much of the dust and stain as possible, spread a clean sheet on the carpet and pin it straight and securely; scatter dry corn meal and powdered borax, mixed in proportions of one cupful of meal to one tablespoonful of borax, Over the sheet pin one curtain, and scatter over it more of the mixture; then another curtain and more mixture until all the curtains are pinned down and all strewn with the meal and

Now pull out all the pins and roll the sheet and curtains in a compact roll, the sheet covering all on the outside. Lay the roll away for two or three weeks where mice cannot get to them, and at the end of that time unroll and shake out your curtains, and you will find them beautifully white and clean.

Housewives are but recently finding out the cleansing power of corn meal and wheat flour, for dry-cleaning delicate articles. If a white serge garment is dusted and sprinkled with corn meal, rolled up and put away for a short time, it will shake out clean .- Commoner.

Clean, Beautiful, Mar-Proof Floors

The only floor varnish which hard usage doesn't mar is the genuine ELASTICA Floor Finish. Heels and casters, rocking and romping have no effect on ELASTICA. Water can't turn it white. It doesn't lose its newness like other floor varnish. It doesn't need constant replacing like wax.

Look for this Trade-Mark on a yellow label. All others are imitations. SENT FREE—We want to send you a book, "How to Finish Floors," filled with expert advice about finishing old and new floors. Also samples of ELASTICA coated on paper for tests. Also a beautiful bookmark—just to repay you for writing us.

Henry L. Gantt of New York out- Boys'

He opened by citing the effectiveness of scientific management when applied to ertain western railroads during a period disastrous strikes, the new methods resulting in a great reduction of unit osts, in spite of the payment of over $1,000,000 in bonus rewards to laborers. The three elements of cost, materials, labor, and fixed charges, and the effectiveness of scientific management in making important savings were illustrated by definite figures, showing the possibility of increased wages to workmen.

"We have inherited," said Mr. Emerson, "two tremendous fallacies from the past. The first of these is the idea that efficiency and strenuousness are identical. they are the least efficient. The other fallacy is the belief that the poverty of the few is in any way due to the wealth of the few. Those who have discovered or enabled the production of great wealth are the benefactors of man.

"The great difficulties in scientific management come always from the managers, never from the workers," said he The various types of management Henry P. Kendall of the Plimpton Press. Norwood, Mass., his address on "Types of Management" as follows: Unsystema tized, systematized, and scientific. More than 70 per cent of business concerns, he said, come under the first class. He se ected five phases in which the differences between the various types are most ap parent: Accounting, purchasing, storage xecution of work, and efficiency of work ers. Comparing these elements he con-

Under the second type statements are made onthly and co and much improved methods of bookkeeping are used. Under scientific manage ment, however, the accounting is ex weeks, assets and liabilities are computed, comparative costs are made, time and instruction cards are issued and cost-computing is a by-product, not an aim, of the system of accounting under scientific management."

The efficiency of workers under the The lecture, as were the others, was three types he analyzed as follows: "Unattended by a large number of lawyers, der the first type the efficiency is small, judges and law students. Leading Events in the Automobile World

BEGINS TODAY WITH RECORD ENTRY LIST

Leave New York for Jacksonville, Fla., Where Trip Comes to Close Thursday, Oct. 26

NEW CONDITIONS

NEW YORK-Under most favorable conditions the annual automobile run for the Glidden trophy started from have entered as regular con testants for the trophy, while 14 other cars will be officially regarded as taking part in the tour, although not eligible for the prize.

When the cars check in at Jackson ville, Fla., the 25th of this month just 1454.6 miles will have been covered and 10 states touched. To do this they will be on the road 11 days, the intervening time not touring being spent in Atlanta, C. J. Glidden, donor of the trophy, is going all the way.

While there will be competing classe this year the rules have been arranged to make it the sort of a tour that Mr Glidden had in mind when he offered his trophy. This has allowed many individual owners to enter, the first time that the run has been so conducted.

Noon-day stops and easy running schedule and no penalties except for tardiness are new features this year. It is also the first time that the route has passed south of Maryland. Also the competitors have set a new record for numbers. This is all due to the energy of southern motorists.

The route for the tour was mapped out by a party headed by A. L. Westgard in two Flanders cars, and he had no difficulty in making the trip, although they were the smallest cars ever used for pathfinding a tour. So with fair weather. the motorists should have a delightful time. The first night will be spent in Philadelphia, but instead of spending Sunday there they will tour on to Gettysburg that day. Many places made nistoric through civil war events will be passed on the run.

This year the contestants are arranged and clubs. Three Metz cars from Waltham are to uphold the honors of Massachusetts and they are the lowest priced cars in the tour. They will be handled by Charles Metz. John McCann and John Carhart. The other representatives are Tarrytown, Nashville, Atlanta Journal, Albany, Ga.; Detroit, Cordele, Athens-Commerce, Southern Georgia, Atlanta Ad Men's Club and Three Atlanta teams.

The official cars comprise a Cunning sam pacemaker, the Reo pilot car, the Reo checker's car's car and the Reo bagrage truck. In addition there will be the three press cars, a Velie, entered by the Moline (III) Company; Chalmers, entered by the factory, and the Pierce-Arrow, entered by O. A. Brictson of Brookins, S. D. Cars are grouped into each price class ranging from $800 and under to $4001 and over. Touring cars and runabouts are not to compete in the same class or for the same prizes.

OVERHEATED MOTOR

W. H. Stewart Says That if Properly Designed This Seldom Occurs Unless Parts Go Wrong

TO TRACE TROUBLE

According to William H. Stewart, Jr., motors properly designed seldom over; heat, except when parts go wrong and produce such a result. In the water cooled motor using the force pump system one would naturally discount any trouble, as there appears to be very little to go wrong.

There is nothing but the radiator, the straight hose connections and the force pump in circuit to accelerate the flow of water. However, when a motor does overheat the following should be inspecied in order to trace the trouble, ays Mr. Stewart:

First-Inspect all hose connections and ote that the water passage is free. It often happens that hose will swell and close, thereby preventing the passage of Second-Try the water pump and see that the water propeller is being properly driven by the shaft to which it is at tached. A broken shaft is not an infrequent occurrence. In case of trouble it is often advisable to remove the pump rated size, adding 10% to the carand thoroughly cleanse the same. In rying capacity cases where poor hose is used, the inner without any exwalls decay and pieces of same lodge in tra cost. and obstruct the pump.

Third-The radiator itself is not always without fault. Due to its peculiar Against Misuse of Signals construction for cooling purposes it is very sensitive to dirt and mineral deposits. When the cells of the radiator become coated, a very large proportion to this tire a of the cooling area is sacrificed. In such with an alkali solution.

With a Double Thick,

Non-Skid Tread

Our patented tire-the most popular tire on the market-is fitted now with a perfect non-skid tread.

So this one tire combines now the three greatest features that were ever devised for tires:

Sales to date on No-Rim-Cut Tires exceed 700,000.

Three in One

Every man who knows now wants tires that can't rim-cut.

He wants tires which are over the rated size, to take care of his extras. A 10% oversize adds 25% to the average mileage.

And he wants tires that don't skid. especially in wet, wintry weather. He wants to get rid of the ruinous chains. All three of these features, in the highest perfection, are now combined in Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires.

Our Patent Type

We control by patent the only practical tire which gets rid of rim-cutting forever. These tires are 10% over the double-thick, non-skid tread, on which our experts have worked for three

It consists of a thick extra tread, immensely wear-resisting, vulcanized onto our regular tread. The extra tread consists of deep-cut blocks, grasping the road surface by countless edges and

The blocks widen out at the base, thus distributing the strain. The grooves can't fill up. The tread remains efficient a great deal longer than any other non-skill tread. When it does wear oil, there's our regular tread below it.

Tire Bills Cut

Each one of these features cuts tire bills. The No-Rim-Cit feature and oversize feature usually save one-half. Now this double tread is added if you want it. Before you again buy tires it

'A Daily Newspaper for the Home

When the last word from the Parliaments of the world is carried by the representative daily journals, how can those who are interested in public questions and world news gain a more comprehensive and intelligent grasp of these subjects than through the columns of the better class of newspapers?

When it is the policy of many of the distinctive newspapers to specialize in a thorough report of the general business situation, how can the manufacturer, merchant and business man be more promptly and accurately informed of commercial and financial conditions than through the columns of the clean daily press?

How can those interested in the development of electricity, aeronautics and in all fields of investigation keep in closer touch with progress in these branches of the world's work than by following the constructive public prints?

How can the educator, social worker and teacher keep more closely in touch with philanthropic endeavor and educational advancement than through the space devoted to these subjects by many of the progressive newspapers?

How can the general reader better keep informed of all that is taking place locally, nationally and universally for good in all departments of life than by daily following the news, editorials and special articles of the clean daily newspapers?

How can political parties more closely gauge public opinion regarding policies, issues and candidates than is reflected through that portion of the press which is recognized as representative of the sentiment of the people and respected for its sanity and breadth of view on all political situations?

Thus is it plain that the conscientious newspaper, as an important instructive factor, is of constantly increasing advantage to all, and newspapers which are trying to put forth a product of this caliber are meeting with growing public respect and patronage. Among those journals so developing is this newspaper, and as an exponent of clean journalism is doing all in its power to make the newspaper not only educative but constructive, through a policy of magnifying the good in all its editorial utterances, in its news attitude and character, and in the quality of its advertising.

The Monitor is going to continue doing its very best to make the paper a steadily growing power for good and an institution that will not only reflect credit on the newspaper profession but which will place it in the front ranks of human service.

BRONTE SISTERS COUNTRY BEAUTIES

(Special to the Monitor)

HE Bronte sisters are unique in the history of English literature. Great literary genius, as indeed genius in any direction, is almost proxerbially isolated-a great poet, a great scholar, a great statesman, steps out from a family of mediocrity and Takes his place in history, alone. True that now and again they have come in couples, seldom indeed, but still now and again from the time of the two brothers who led Israel out of Egypt, to the days of the two Kingsleys, or the two Wesleys, but never before from the one family have three thus joined hands as it were, and so quietly, so immediately so quite without dispute taken their place among the great. It is true that the claim of Emily and Anne Bronte to literary greatness rests each on a single book and a few poems yet the foundation is sure enough "Wuthering Heights" with all its cruditics, its immaturity, its almost unre lieved gloom is nevertheless the work of a great genius and the same must be said of Anne's single effort, "The Tenant of Wildfell Hall."

"She is in the blue tints, the pale mists"thoughtful, gentle, full of great faith, but always in the future, in "the distant prospect," never in anything that was at hand. And so thus she expresses herself in "The Three Guides":

of her own country, we may well pause a moment and ask ourselves what it is about the Bronte sisters which always has arrested and always will arrest the attention of thinking men and women. What is it that has given birth to Bronte societies to pilgrimage almost from the ends of the earth, to the remote and unbeautiful hill town of Haworth, and above all to reprints, literally by millions, of their books? The romance of their lonely lives-the sentiment attaching to their short but brilliant literary careers has something no doubt to do with it: but the real attraction lies much deeper than that, much hearer to the heart of truth; its roots are found firmly embedded in a great reality of being. Thackeray found it in the words quoted above, "They had a passion for right and truth."

Frailty Is Granite-Strong

BEES BUSY

Picked a pumpkin, none was sweeter, Pumpkin cried in accents mellow, "Please, don't eat me, I might yellow."

Peter dropped him in dismay, Left his knife and ran away; Jack-Knife now his talent tries, Carves a nose and mouth and eyes.

Feeling lonely, yes and vexed, Cheers him up until his smile Stretches almost half a mile.

Froggy calls the bees to come Drag the pumpkin chariot home, Some in front and some behind 'em, Thirty-four here, can you find 'em?

Light the lantern bright as day; Though the night is all about Pumpkin shines and seems to shout.

Flutt'ring wings that try to wink'll Make the lantern eyes go twinkle, Broad and broader goes his grin, Buzz and Busy dance within. (Copyrighted 1910 by Alexander Dodds. All rights reserved.)

Travel half an inch an hour, Queen comes down to see what's up, Asks the party in to sup.

MONITOR BOOK OF GAMES

VERY amusing is the game of Musicians. One person is made leader of the orchestra and all the others take the names of certain performers. Thus, there would be a violinist who pantomimes the motion of a bow, a pianist who runs over imaginary keys, a horn blower who puffs, and so forth. At the beginning of the game the leader goes through the motions of directing the orchestra, but he is privileged at any time without notifying the other performers, to assume the instrument of any one of them. Thus, he may suddenly begin to play the piano or the violin. The person to whom this instrument belongs must immediately begin to direct the orchestra, continuing until the leader assumes his own work again. No directions are given. The game is carried on in complete silence, but the pantomime of all concerned and the frequent changes are highly diverting.

CUSHION DANCE

Cushion dance is always mirthful. It is played by dividing the company into two parts and then having both divisions join hands with a sofa pillow or other cushion on the floor, around which the ring dances merrily. As they circle around it one half gently endeavors to draw the other half forward so far that some one of its members will touch the cushion with his or her feet. Each one touching it must leave the circle. and the division having most members at the end of the romp wins

There is a woman's chorus con nected with this society, which is also under Mr. Guckenberger's direction. Mr. Guckenberger began the study of music at the age of 10, under Klausmeyer and George Schneider of Cincinnati, O. He was at the same time also a student of theory, harmony and composition with Arthur Mees, director of the famous Worcester, Mass., musical festivals and now of the Cecilia Society of Boston In 1886 he went abroad and studied piano with Naver Scharwenka, theory and composition with Philipp Scharwenka and score reading and conducting under Gustav Kogel and Georg

Henschel. Returning to this country he was engaged as a professor of pianoforte at the College of Music of Cincinnati, where he remained for seven years. In 1895 Mr. Guckenberger received an invitation to settle in Birmingham, Ala., and there established the conservatory of music of which he was director for seven years. This conservatory is one of the leading institutions of the South and now directed by Mrs. Gussen, one of Mr. Guckenberger's former piano pupils

This is Mr. Guckenberger's ninth year in Boston. At present he counts some of the best and most talented pianists of Boston and vicinity among his pupils.

QUEEN ELIZABETH CLOCK BRINGS $38

WHIPPANY, N. J .- A large clock of Queen Elizabeth's time, was sold at public sale here recently with a number of other antiques belonging to Matthias Burnett, of Monroe, and brought only $38. The purchaser was John Anthony.

In 1597 the clock was presented by Queen Elizabeth to Rushen Castle, Castledown Isle, England. This eastle was erected in 1257, according to the description inside the ancient timepiece.

The face of the clock is hammered brass and the dial is in Roman figures. There is only the hour hand on the dial. the nimutes being gauged by this hand as it passes the division marks between

The works are of peculiar construction, the pendulum being a rope at the end of which is fastened a stone. The winding and striking are also two ropes, weighted with stones.

The clock is wound once a week and a rope encircles a cylinder made of hard wood. The timepiece is seven feet tall and 12 inches wide. It is made of mahogany and from the dial down is en-

The clock was brought from England by the great grandfather of Mathia Burnett, 300 years ago, and has been handed down from one generation to another until the present time.

NEW YORK-Prospects for the hop crop are not such as to induce consum ers to postpone their purchaess. Last year's yield was up to the average for the five years from 1905 to 1000 inclusive or 182,517,000 pounds. The yield of 1909 was the lowest in many years, $114,360,000 pounds, or practically half

The continental crop is somewhat less then demands, hence buyers have been engaging English hops for some weeks. In New York and on the Pacific coast prices have advanced remarkably.

ARGENTINE CROP REPORTS

NEW YORK-Argentine's ministry of agriculture reports that there is little likelihood of damage from locusts during the current season. Swarms have been noted in the extreme north. Elsewhere damage has been slight and cool weather has held them back. Extreme south of Buenos Ayres is still without Sun rises...... 5:57 ligh water, adequate rain, but elsewhere crops are Length of day...11:07 Wheat and linseed in the north-ern part are particularly promising. EYRE PENINSULA ON WEST COAST MAKES PROGRESS

Unique Tour In History of South Australia Is Made By Commission In Motor Cars to See Railway Route

(Special to the Monitor)

ADELAIDE, S. Aus .- During the last few years considerable attention has been given to the lands of the west coast of Eyre peninsula, and the expansion of the settlement has been truly marvelous. The potentialities of the country were not realized until a number of young farmers proceeded to prove the capabilities of the soil for the growth of cereals Many of them became most successful settlers with the result that hundreds of others followed who were desirous of making homes for themselves in this valuable portion of the state.

The policy of the country is to give every opportunity to farmers to get their produce to the scaboard by means of railway facilities. All things being equal rainfall and character of the soil good the government of the state of South Australia has ever done all in its power to provide the producers with quick and reasonably cheap transit.

In furtherance of that policy Parliament agreed to the appointment of a the construction of a railway on Eyre adjourned for three weeks in order that the commission could see the extensive tract of country to be served by the proposed railway, and to hear the opinions witnesses from Mt. Two Old English Comedies

One of the earliest and quaintest of he old-time comedies is "Gammer Gurton's Needle," supposed to have been written about 1565, or earlier. "Ralph Royster Doyster" is usually credited as the first of English comedies, written by Nicholas Udall about 1551. John Still was the author of "Gammer Gur-

China for the Chinese

UNLESS reports from China much exaggerate the situation, the Manchu dynasty is facing a serious uprising, more open and widespread than the one that Tsz'e An, the greatest of Asiatic women, nipped in the bud in 1898. Then, Kang-Yu Wei for a time got the ear of Kwangsu, the young Emperor, and together they plotted against the life of the Empress dowager and planned for wide and deep reforms. Kang-Yu Wei barely escaped with his life; many of his lieutenants were killed; the Empress dowager seized the reins of power; Yuan Shih Kai, though a progressive, sided with the throne, and the Emperor became a puppet that in the course of time was eliminated.

Now, the central and western provinces, dominated by Chinese influences as against Manchu, and least subject to control from Peking, seem in a mood to challenge the dynasty that won its title by use of force and that has not held it by compelling loyalty through moral power. Concessions to the pressure from the provinces for immediate rather than proximate testing of constitutional government have come frequently during the past two years from the regent and the court circle of statesmen. But the policy at Peking both as to domestic reform and a resolute attitude toward foreign powers has not satisfied the more radical of the reformers.

Much depends upon the loyalty to the throne of the national troops of the north and the attitude of the ablest and most resourceful of the Chinese viceroys. The latter might readily be party to setting up a new regime at Peking without consenting to substitution of a republic for a constitutional monarchy, such as the more moderate and opportunist of the reformers have favored. Public opinion of the world will doubtless sympathize with an effort to give to a vast race a sovereign of its own stock, whereas such opinion would hardly favor so radical a change in form of government as a doctrinaire, educated in the United States, would urge and fight for.

To have republics you must have republicans; and vast aggregations of people subject to paternal and autocratic government, as China and Russia have been for centuries, can hardly be made over into representative democracies in a day. Increasing movement in this direction, however, seems to indicate, at least, rising intelligence in the mass.

Anti-Cons ervation Doctrine

THE confidence shown in his Sturgis (Mich.) speech by the Vice-President of the United States with respect to his countrymen's capacity to defy the workings of laws that govern other peoples begets wonder if not praise. Forethought, conservation, economy in use of national natural assets seem to be treated as of little account, as if each generation were to use to the limit, letting the next generation find new resources or go under.

To one in this attitude, of course, social stewardship is a utopian dream. We trust that the adjuration, "Get all you can, while you can, and never mind those who come after," is not, after all, a fair paraphrase of the argument of Mr. Sherman.

Undoubtedly there is reason for man's faith in his successor's ability to make as good an adjustment as is possible to whatever conditions face him, after his predecessors have had their fling. Contemporary Chinese manage to live, but not so well as they would have if their hills and mountains had not been stripped of timber. Solar heat, stored and transportable, may heat the dwellings of men after wood and coal have disappeared and all the peat bogs have been dried and briquetted, but this assumption does not justify such disregard of economy in use of fuel as, until a recent date, characterized the residents of the United States.

If the Vice-President, when he ceases to preside over the Senate. will hie him around the world, a route can be arranged for him by any high school graduate that will lead him to the seats of former civilizations where they practised absolutely the policy which he seems, in reports of his speech, to recommend the United States to follow. Empires fall, as modern historians show, because of economic folly as well as because of ethical shortcomings. Americans are already sufficiently addicted to "free spending" without being exhorted to become spendthrift.

The Business Situation

Among the developments of the week that may be considered as having an important bearing on trade conditions are the government crop report, the monthly statement of the Copper Producers Association, and the unfilled tonnage report of the United States Steel Corporation. The statement of the department of agriculture as to condition of the-grain crops was about as expected. Light improvement in corn prospects was more than enough to offset the loss of 3,000,000 bushels in spring wheat as compared with the previous monthly report. Although the average vield of the cereals will not be so large as last year, the harvest will be a good average. The cotton crop will be the largest on record. Accordingly the country has nothing to complain of even though the total results will not be up to expectations. There will be a good tonnage for the railroads to handle and after the needs of 90,000,000 consumers of the United States have been supplied there will be a good amount for export. Cotton contributes a very large percentage of shipments to other countries. This section of the United States has been greatly prospered in recent years and its future looks exceedingly bright.

The report of the Copper Producers Association reflects a shrinkage in the volume of business handled by the industries, showing as it does an increase in the surplus stocks in the face of a substantial reduction in the amount produced. The copper metal trade has been in an unsatisfactory condition for a long time. Its revival depends upon improvement in general business and this is certain to come before a great many months. The iron and steel trade has suffered to a less extent. The report of the Steel corporation indicated a smaller falling off in unfilled orders on hand than had been expected. Prices have been crumbling to some extent for steel products, and consumers have been getting the benefit.

Cost of doing business is gradually lessening. Economic practises are beginning to have a beneficial effect. It may take some time for all to learn this lesson, but there is certainly less extravagance and waste today in commercial and domestic activities than prevailed a few months or a year ago. There is still vast room for improvement. There are great quantities of fruit going to waste under the trees just now at a time when people are paying good prices for it in the markets and the poorer classes are deprived. This is one instance of where man's ingenuity or thrift has not measured up to the situation. The middleman, the wholesaler, or the retailer may be blamed for a condition such as this, but it exists throughout the country. And it has much to do with the high cost of living. Vacant lots, untilled acreage and waste lands, if put under cultivation, would reduce the cost of living enormously.

Boston's educational reformers, in their effort to develop maximum use of school buildings by juveniles and adults, have been blocked by lack of law authorizing such plan, or any letting or leasing of the plant to individuals or associations willing to pay the bills and do the work, where and when taxpayers cannot be induced to assume the extra expense. To do away with this obstacle an ordinance has been drafted and is now before the common council, which deserves the aid of all citizens of intelligence and ordinary prudence. That the sums invested by taxpayers in school plant can be made to pay much higher social dividends is clear. The old notion of a schoolhouse used only five days a week, for juveniles, solely as a place of instruction, has become obsolete. A schoolhouse may be a center of inspiration, recreation and instruction every day and night, both to adults and youth; and some day it will be so rated, and so used as a factor in community life, by all progressive towns and cities. If, prior to the time that public opinion supports taxation for such use, individuals are willing to assume the expense in part or in whole, it is the part of prudence to accept the aid generously offered. Both the kindergarten and manual training first found their way into Boston's scheme of education by a woman's generous aid in proving that each new feature was needed. It is by this combined action of individuals and communities that America, without the centralized imposition of methods as in Germany, keeps well to the front in educational reform.

City Planning for Holyoke

THE Board of Trade of Holyoke, after careful consideration of the matter, has gone on record favoring action by the municipal council which will enable the city to have an art commission similar to that of Boston. Recent state legislation has made it possible for cities and towns to create bodies of three members, empowered to pass upon all municipal buildings and all works of art either given to the communities or purchased by them. Such a commission may determine sites for art buildings and for statuary. Rightly constituted, it might well take on other functions of city planning of an advisory sort, even though not empowered to carry out its ideas.

That a city of the type of Holyoke, laid out on the checkerboard plan by its founders, given over to manufacturing and industry, and with no traditions of an esthetic sort, should be one of the first of the smaller urban communities of the state to discuss taking advantage of this new law, is a good omen. The city a few years ago, under the direction of a mayor who has since been state treasurer and is now state banking commissioner, got out of a slough of mismanagement and set its ideals of administration high. With a mixed population such as most New England mill towns are coming to have, it is succeeding better than many of them in keeping alive a civic spirit that is as broad as the new race composite is varied.

What the manufacturing towns of New England need is city squares and small open spaces, playgrounds, neighborhood parks, large outlying parks or scenic reservations, and a chain of connecting drives or parkways. Expansion of territory given over to homes of workers should be an ordered process along lines definitely determined by competent advisers. Whatever the defects of the older and more congested regions, they should not be tolerated in the new sections of the town or city. Responsibility, moral and pecuniary, for leadership in this sort of communal statesmanship rests with the captains of industry who lead the hosts that man the mills. And that a city is of second or third rate with respect to population is only an' additional reason why it should be in the first class with respect to its plan of development.

During the last year 3,000,000 acres of public land has been taken from the forest reserve and opened for settlement. Other lands of a like character will probably be released shortly for the benefit of homesteaders. Uncle Sam's farm is not so large as it used to be, but he is still able to set up in housekeeping many thousands of his sons and daughters.

COLUMBIA ranks first among the universities of the country and of the world this year in point of number of registered students. The college population-over 8000-would make a good-sized town. It is hoped that in due time the students will go forth and help to make many good-sized towns better.

MR. ROCKEFELLER, it is said, paid $35 for an overcoat the other day. The dryness of tariff discussion might be somewhat relieved if the exponents of high protection and free trade would take this overcoat as an example and show, on the one hand, how Mr. Rockefeller was benefited, and, on the other, how harmed, by the wool schedule.

DES MOINES, IA., naturally feels complimented that one of its commissioners was chosen president of the League of American Municipalities. Des Moines is a leader among American municipalities in some respects, and the disposition everywhere is to encourage her, in many places to emulate her.

It is a remarkable as well as an interesting fact that St. Louis continues to hold the lead as a center for long-distance ballooning. And in this connection it might be mentioned that the record it made over a generation ago has a high standing in aeronautics today.

Nobody will be surprised to learn, of course, that the wall paper trust is expected to cut quite a figure in the trade regulation move-

SIR ROBERT PEEL has found that a famous name is not a convertible asset.

Madison, N. J., is by no means a large community, but it is progressive, and, being possessed of many charms, and being situated conveniently to both New York and Newark, it contains the summer and permanent homes of many business men of those cities. It has for residents, in short, many who want and are willing to pay for the best of everything, including public improvements. There are times, as everybody experienced in the ways of progressive towns knows full well, when progress is carried to extremes, and if not very carefully directed becomes even worse than backwardness.

In Madison, for instance, the business district, we are told, had been "all torn up" for months. When good and costly pavements were laid, precautions were not taken first to lay sewers beneath them. The result was that when it became necessary to lay the sewers the good and costly pavement had to be destroyed. The telephone company thought the torn-up condition of the streets afforded it a fine opportunity, so it began to construct conduits for its wires. This called for trenching and the piling up of great ridges of earth. Then the trolley company, seeing so much going on, undertook to reconstruct its system, and more picking, excavating and earth-banking was the result. On top of all this came the gas company, and when the several gangs of workmen settled down to their tasks and got in each other's way, the scene, and the prospect, were well calculated to discourage any business man, or all of them, whether they wrote themselves down from Madison, Newark or New York.

Days came and went, weeks trailed into months, but the torn-up condition of the business section of Madison continued. Trade was crippled. Everybody using the streets was inconvenienced. At length the mayor, George W. Downs, thought the time for action had arrived. He assumed command of the situation; issued orders to the different working gangs and saw that they were carried out, showed how work could be pushed here and expedited there, and in an incredibly short space of time the trenches were closed, obstacles to traffic taken away, litter removed and the thoroughfares thrown open to public use. He accomplished in one day what would have taken weeks if loose methods had continued.

It is not related that Mayor Downs scolded the contractors of "drove" the workmen. He simply directed them intelligently, and as one in authority. He displayed those qualities that are the attributes of a leader of men, and gave the corporations doing business in Madison a lesson in efficiency. Few are the American cities that do not need mayors possessed with the courage and the ability to assume command of such situations, and to clean things up

THE municipal court of a western city has placed under bond an owner of chickens, thus restraining him from permitting the fowl to invade the premises of his neighbors. This is a step in the right direction, and a long one. But another remains to be taken. The chicken owner has long been held responsible for whatever annoyance his chickens may cause or for whatever depredations his chickens may commit, but is it altogether fair that the chickens should be permitted to rest immune from the operation of the law? There are few things in our prevailing social economic system so suddenly or so keenly felt as a falling off in the egg supply. A shortage is reported in the egg output today; everybody orders eggs, soft-boiled, scrambled, poached or fried, tomorrow. The price goes up, and next day, or the day after, the newspapers denounce the cold storage warehousemen and order everybody back to the chicken yard. At this crucial moment the right-meaning householder invariably steps into the breach. He is moved by the most unselfish of purposes, by the highest civic and general patriotism, and in a few days he has chickens laying. The more they lay the more they scratch for those delicacies of which they are proverbially fond. This takes them eventually and inevitably into the next lot. Then, assuming the western precedent established, the man who wanted to be of service to his fellows finds himself restrained and bonded.

If any offense has been committed, society, of course, is the real offender, but it is impossible for the courts to reach society. The chicken owner is a benefactor rather than a malefactor. Who or what, then, should be held amenable to the operation of the restraining order and the bond? Manifestly, the chicken. Let us be clear. Every chicken should be compelled to stand upon its own legs. This is simply a figurative way of saying that every chicken should be held accountable for its own conduct. The owner is busy with many things. He is down town, maybe in the stock market, maybe in the wholesale or retail district; maybe he has all the responsibilities during business hours he can take care of; maybe what he seeks most on his return home in the evening is that repose that comes of looking over the chicken coop for new-laid eggs. At all events, it is not right that he should be tapped on the shoulder by a constable or bailiff and summoned to appear in court next morning to answer for something his chickens did to the people next door.

No; the proceedings, whatever they might be, should be made to lie against the chicken; they and they alone should be restrained and bonded. This might involve the confiscation of their commercial product for one day, one week or one month, but the court should have the whole matter, from the arrest to the restoration, conducted without any bother whatever to the chicken owner. Either this, or people who like eggs and must have them, especially when they are scarce, should not grumble when the backlotters give up chickenkeeping in disgust. And unless something shall be done to bring about the reform hinted at here, it will be folly for the newspapers to attempt to revive interest in the suburban industrial uplift.

AMERICAN state legislatures, and even the American Congress, might find something to contemplate in the Canadian expectancy that the Parliament which meets early next month at Ottawa will get through with its business before Dec. 25.
